

Case Study

ATB Morley Ltd

The Company

ATB Morley specialise in the supply of drives for bespoke and arduous duties, applications and environments. A good reputation for reliability was established following many years of supplying motors for use in underground coal mines & for making problem applications reliable by replacing competitors' failed motors with reliable ATB Morley motors that were designed and manufactured to order.

The Challenges

Following a downturn during the recession, an unexpected reversal saw demand exceeding the company's capacity to produce. To ensure that delivery time could be increased, without compromising quality the company needed to look at improving working methods.

Objectives

- To maximise productivity
- To reduce costs
- To ensure that there is no reduction in quality or reliability

The Results

- Establishment of capacity strategy
- Streamlining of the computer processes to integrate ordering and production
- Strengthened the teamwork between sites
- Improvement of communications within the company and between suppliers
- Budget setting aligned to turnover
- Rationalisation programme expanded
- Continuous improvement process established
- Consigner revalidation accelerated
